Social Credit Group Factor in Prov. Election

Says Mayor Tooley, Who Spent Nine Days in Capital City—No Definitive Information Regarding Contest Now in North

That the Social Credit group would be a factor in the next provincial election was the report brought back by Mayor Tooley, who spent nine days in Edmonton on Friday, where he spent nine days.

"The movement has made much headway in the southern part of the province," said his Worship, in conversation with The Tribune reporter, "as to give all parties concern. This was admitted by the several members of the Legislature with whom I spoke. The Social Credit group threaten to be the big factor in every constituency where they cannot get a satisfactory answer on the question from the nominees of the other parties."

In reply to a query as to his own opinion on Social Credit, the Mayor replied: "After seeing the subject I cannot see how it will work on provincial scale. The $25 a month dividend, which Mr. Abernethy now says he used as illustration, seems to be the big attraction."

In answer to a question put by The Tribune reporter if he had learned anything definite with regard to creating a new constituency in the Peace River, his Worship replied that he had taken the matter up with several members of the different parties and none of them knew definitely whether a new constituency would be created or not.

It is expected that the session will close about the middle of April.

While in Edmonton Mayor Tooley addressed the Board of Trade and asked for the cooperation of that body in securing the subvention for the youth country club.

He also touched on the necessity of getting cheap money for municipalities and, on request, gave a general outline of the Home plan of British settlement in Canada.

Mr. Pravey informed the Mayor that the Grande Prairie Creamery would reopen about the middle of April.

"There is a possibility that Grande Prairie will have a flour mill in the near future," was the encouraging report brought back. The Mayor said he took the matter up with certain responsible people in the Capital city.

Low Price Spuds Depresses Prince Edward Island

L. McLaughlin, of Beauséjour, returned from a trip to his old home at Clyde, Prince Edward Island, where he visited his parents, brother and sister.

Spoken by The Tribune reporter, the East-Islander stated that the price of his old stamping grounds for twenty years and more had been depressed since that time.

"It is only now," said Mr. McLaughlin, "that the price of potatoes, which are one of the staple products of the island, are selling at 10 and 12 cents a bushel, while a year ago they brought 25 cents."

"The political pot," said the East-Islander, "was beginning to boil as the election which is to be held this year draws near. If you want a real argument in the country, just start talking politics," observed Mr. McLaughlin, who then went on to say that there was plenty of snow in the island. On one occasion the mercury dropped to 16 below and he felt the cold worse than when it is 40 below in this country.

What struck Mr. McLaughlin very forcibly was the closeness of the farm houses. This, he explained, was due to the smallness of the farms, which average about 100 acres, some being as small as 40 acres.

Mr. McLaughlin, who left Grande Prairie between Christmas and New Year, said that his farming is still one of the principal industries of the island.

Rev. E. A. Wright Accepts Call From Eastern Church

Rev. E. A. Wright of Forbes Presbyterian Church, Grande Prairie, recently received a call, which he has accepted, from the Eastern Church at Kintore, Oxford County, Ontario, and will leave with his family for his new charge the latter part of April.

Mr. Wright will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday, April 14.

Coming to Grande Prairie in 1929, Mr. Wright is the eldest minister in the district. He has been in the field for 15 years, laboring on both sides of the Peace, with the result that there are now five Presbyterian churches, twenty-two preaching points, three ordained ministers, two deacons, and one medical missionary in the Peace River country.

Good Sized Crowd Attends Boxing Bouts, Sexsmith

There was a good sized turnout at the boxing bouts staged by the Sexsmith Branch of the Canadian Legion on Friday night. One knockout and two out on their feet were the high spots in the fights.

The card was put away to a good start by Ryan Wilson and Ross Johnson, who boxed three lively rounds. A draw was popular with the fans.

J. Duda of Sexsmith and Glen Stutley of Lacombe were next introduced. Stutley had the height and reach, which he used to good advantage.

The first round Duda landed several hard body blows. From then on Stutley's size began to tell and the referee stopped the fight in the middle of the third and final round when Duda was no longer able to defend himself.

M. Duda and Edgar Ophers fought four lively rounds, the boys showing plenty of speed and willingness to mix it up to the delight of the crowd. This bout was declared a draw.

Possibly the most even fight on the bill was the "go" between Ted Jopson of Smoky Heights and Harold Fouts of Grande Prairie, who boxed four good rounds. Fouts had the edge in reach, which he used to good advantage.

Reynolds' effort this by his aggressiveness and the referee could not do otherwise than declare the bout a draw.

Another fight between two scrappers should prove popular. The first expected pickup action, between "Smoky" Smith and "Calvin" Ross. "The Minute" Smith was a local favorite.

When interviewed by The Tribune reporter the visitors stated that they were making a business survey of the district.

Mr. Glass stated that conditions were generally improving in the district and people were hopeful of a good crop this year, as there was ample moisture for seeding.

Mr. Dahl expressed himself as quite optimistic regarding business at Edmonton and district.

This is Mr. Glass' first trip to the Peace River.

Along the Trail

By J. B. YULE

JUST TICKLED TO DEATH

A rather humorous incident from a spectator's standpoint—took place at Seasmith on Friday night last. After Ward went down after being hit on the "button" (chin) by Green, he vainly tried to get up. Now this is what any sane fighter would have done, so that there was nothing unusual about his action in this respect. All the while he was struggling to defy gravity he was chuckling and talking to himself. I can't make it. "I can't do it," were a couple of his remarks caught by the writer.

I have seen several other acts get the same way after being hit hard. I remember seeing a fighter at one of the Seasmith Legions' boxing bouts several years ago getting a punch on the side of the head, the bell which practically put him out on his feet. He staggered around the ring to his corner chuckling to himself. He seemed to be "just tickled to death."

Now what I want to know is, not having any knowledge of the nervous system, what causes all this hilarity in the face of such a defeat? Is it the receiving a vicious punch on some part of the head?

To the average person it would seem that there are certain nerves in the anatomy of man which when hit have the tendency to make the fighter laugh. We would welcome an explanation of this seeming phenomenon.

A HUMOROUS COMPARISON

The other day it was my privilege to ride some fourteen miles in a stage, the longest stage ride which I had taken in years. In all there were seven in the party. Both horses were excellent animals and we made the trip in very good time.

One of the team, however, had a tendency to hang back slightly and let the willing horse eat the pace and more than his share. The result was that the slow horse had occasionally to be touched up with the whip.

As one of the party picked up the whip he made the following observation:

"One of these horses must be a Socialist and the other a Capitalist."

That slow horse evidently believes in Social Credit and is hanging back for its dividend. The other horse is a true Socialist in that it wants to bear its fair share of the load and then some.

It should be mentioned that this young man has strong Social Credit leanings and is therefore at variance with the Social Credit group.

In my travels along The Trail I am often struck with the original ideas and expressions I hear. I have about come to the conclusion that the pointed sayings and original ideas are not all found in books.

"RED JIM" RELUCTANTLY LEAVES MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

"Red Jim" McDonald, who was in the Grande Prairie Municipal Hospital for some time as a result of breaking his left arm, reluctantly left the hospital on Wednesday.

I happened to meet my old friend just as he was getting out of a sleigh in front of the Murray Hotel.

"How did you like your holiday?" I enquired.

"I had the time of my young life. Good food, excellent service, and plenty of good reading," Jim replied.

"What type of reading did you indulge in?" I ventured.

"Adventure," answered Jim, who then went on to explain that his life had run along at such a dead level that he found some of the adventure most stimulating and broke the dull monotony.

Jim informed the writer that his broken wing would be somewhat shorter than the other arm, adding, "But as I do not work with my hands, that does not matter."

Apart from the fact that Jim's blond complexion had turned to a delicate pink, he showed no sign of his recent confinement to hospital.

IN THE TRIBUNE'S MAIL BOX

To The Editor of The Tribune.

The letter in your issue of March 14, under the title of "Re Conditions on Homeless," caused me a little comment here. It seems a Miss Hanson, M.P.E. Anglican, came to the mission, has been teaching in England raising money for their annual tour, etc., in the Peace River Country. She describes so vividly the utter poverty and destitution encountered among the settlers visited in the pioneer districts that her audience, moved no doubt by her sob story, dug down deep into their pockets. No doubt but that Miss Hanson was actuated by the good motives, but they may charge should begin at home and I have an idea that that estimable lady could find enough money to relieve the slum districts of her own homeland without venturing so far away. Poverty and destitution exist in every country and go hand in hand with the capitalist system, so why emphasizing the fact that might lead some to think that it exists only in the Peace River Country?

In regard to the writer's comment on homeless conditions no one will challenge the statement that there is room for improvement, but no two men seem to agree as to what should be done. There are at present many farmers who homesteaded in this district twenty-five years ago, when homesteading conditions were, in my opinion, much harder than they are today, as they are still here to tell the tale.

Like the writer, I endorse U. F. A. principles and would like to point out that no party is greater than the principles it stands for, so it is up to all of us to see that the U. F. A. movement to help alter the conditions in this respect.

Dad's Notions

By E. S. Stanley

ALL DADS LIARS

All dads are liars. Though unwittingly so, it is no less the fact, a strange statement by one who himself is a dad.

Not that children are bad, is sure, but that fathers are liars. When we consider how remiss we are as parents.

"Don't do that," commands father, "or I'll whip," intently and long the child studies his parent's face and wonders if he means it. He is reassured by discretion, the child always, watchfully disbelieving, unconvinced, scornfully, and unquiescent. Thus the father lied—the child received a lesson in deception.

But a fool's word uttered in haste is sometimes all that is needed to keep would be a greater wrong than to break. An extreme case in point was the death of John the Baptist.

Think before speaking. I remember seeing a father make no effort to correct the error of unwise speech. Though we would doubt the greater wrong, we refuse to own our part.

Not weakened but strengthened is the child's respect for the parent who acknowledges his own mistakes; but his confidence when he ignores them.

But Dad's word wrong as it may be, but he never comes to it, is always right, and I am always wrong what the use of trying to do right?

Truthfulness, we teach, is honorable; but when a child tells the truth, he is soundly whipped for it—what for? Truthfulness is a misdemeanor he is soundly whipped for it—what for?

Strong is the impulse to escape pain, often outweighing the desire to be truthful. And thus the child seeks to escape pain, and who can blame him?

This leads to the question of being honest with our child; of this later.

Press Gallery, Edmonton.

EDMONTON, Mar. 26.—The routine of legislative business in the Alberta house was broken this week by the visit of the Earl and Countess of Beesborough to the capital.

At both the house and the senate, the Earl and Countess were given an official welcome by both the legislative bodies.

A public reception was accorded the distinguished visitors in the afternoon, when addresses were presented from the province by Premier R. G. Reid and the Earl and Countess.

The Earl and Countess were presented with a bouquet of flowers by the Earl and Countess of Beesborough.

Excellencies to the west as their term of office ends this year and they return to their home in England, and there was no doubt about the warm wishes of the future expressed to them.

Wednesday's debate on the budget which had shown signs of weakening for a day or two, came to an end and the house got down to the more serious business of the session by going into committee to consider supplies.

The estimates of the Attorney-General's department and of the agriculture department were passed with comparatively little discussion. The only noteworthy feature of the session was a letter from Mr. W. R. Howson, Liberal leader, moved that the salary of the Attorney-General be reduced to $5,000 a year. The motion was rejected by the government.

It was in the afternoon that the government's expenditures earlier in the session.

Mr. Mitchell declared he would not take that kind of a charge against the Pembina member to repeat his charges "outside."

Automobile and Farmer Boost Business In the Middle West

Babson Sees Chicago as World's Biggest City of Future

BAIBSON PARK, Florida, Mar. 15.—The current boom in the automobile industry plus the tremendous boost in farm purchasing power last year are responsible for the great improvement in conditions around the Great Lakes. Thus the Middle West, along with the Prairie States and the South, is leading the nation back to recovery. While possibly Michigan is the only outstanding state from a sales angle at this time, all the other Middle Western states must be given at least a fair rating.

Automobile and Farmer Boost Business In the Middle West

Babson Sees Chicago as World's Biggest City of Future

BAIBSON PARK, Florida, Mar. 15.—The current boom in the automobile industry plus the tremendous boost in farm purchasing power last year are responsible for the great improvement in conditions around the Great Lakes. Thus the Middle West, along with the Prairie States and the South, is leading the nation back to recovery. While possibly Michigan is the only outstanding state from a sales angle at this time, all the other Middle Western states must be given at least a fair rating.

Dad's Notions

By E. S. Stanley

ALL DADS LIARS

All dads are liars. Though unwittingly so, it is no less the fact, a strange statement by one who himself is a dad.

Not that children are bad, is sure, but that fathers are liars. When we consider how remiss we are as parents.

"Don't do that," commands father, "or I'll whip," intently and long the child studies his parent's face and wonders if he means it. He is reassured by discretion, the child always, watchfully disbelieving, unconvinced, scornfully, and unquiescent. Thus the father lied—the child received a lesson in deception.

But a fool's word uttered in haste is sometimes all that is needed to keep would be a greater wrong than to break. An extreme case in point was the death of John the Baptist.

Think before speaking. I remember seeing a father make no effort to correct the error of unwise speech. Though we would doubt the greater wrong, we refuse to own our part.

Not weakened but strengthened is the child's respect for the parent who acknowledges his own mistakes; but his confidence when he ignores them.

But Dad's word wrong as it may be, but he never comes to it, is always right, and I am always wrong what the use of trying to do right?

Truthfulness, we teach, is honorable; but when a child tells the truth, he is soundly whipped for it—what for? Truthfulness is a misdemeanor he is soundly whipped for it—what for?

Strong is the impulse to escape pain, often outweighing the desire to be truthful. And thus the child seeks to escape pain, and who can blame him?

This leads to the question of being honest with our child; of this later.

With the Boy Scouts

NATIONS LEAGUE IN HEART OF MONTREAL

Constituting a "Little League of Nations" in the very heart of Montreal, the Boy Scout group of the Church of All Nations is one of the most unique boy organizations of the world, in that its membership is drawn from no less than 15 European nationalities. And although it is one of the most active and successful troops of the Dominion, there is not a boy of British nativity in it.

The 100 boys making up this group, 65 Scouts and 44 Cubs or Juniors, are the sons of nations, many of which are traditional enemies, and habitually suspicious of one another's motives. But here in Canada they transplanted some work, learn, play and obey the Scout Law side by side, in an atmosphere of true comradeship, and national spites and rancours have no place in their lives. It is a remarkable vindication of the confidence in universal boy nature shown by the founder of the Scout Movement, Lord Baden-Powell, when he expounded that fourth Scout Law, "A Scout is a Brother to every other Scout," irrespective of race or creed.

The nationalities represented in this extraordinary group, listed in order of numerical strength, are: Ukrainian, Hungarian, Polish, Russian, Italian, Serbian, Jugoslav, Bulgarian, German, Austrian, Roumanian, Czech, Slovakian, Grecian, French and Croatian.

Some of these boys are fluent linguists, and many are the occasions on which they are called upon to act as interpreters for social service work. One of their chief "good turns," and this is true particularly of the Wolf Cubs, is teaching their mothers the English language. They engage very heartily in community work of any nature, and recently presented to the church a beautiful quartered-oak hand-carved communion table, a reading desk of similar design, a magnificent brass cross and three brass flower vases.

The value of the gifts was enhanced by the fact that the boys themselves did much of the work on the various articles, under guidance of a master craftsman, father of one of the Boy Scouts. They paid for them from their Scout fees, and with money that was raised through various service efforts.

These boys think and live Scouting. They are the stuff of which real citizens are made, and it is doubtful if their attendance record of 93 percent for all meetings held during the past six months is equaled by any other Scout group in Canada.

Two of the boys returned to their native countries, Poland and Hungary, last year, but are regular communicants with their old Scoutmaster. They took Scout literature with them, and one has joined a troop at his home town in Poland where, doubtless, he recalls his fellow Scouts on many occasions with stories of the Scout brotherhood of nations in Montreal.

THE COST OF RAISING TURKEYS

(Experimental Farms Note)
At the Dominion Experimental Station at Scott, British Columbia, have been grown for the last six seasons with considerable and representative of national groups, and the hymns to be used in the service have been chosen to represent the contribution of different nationalities to the life of the Canadian church.

Records kept of fuel used for incubators and brooders together with feed records in grain, grit, water, shell, mash and milk for turkeys until they reached market weight. It was found when the price of mixed grain is about one cent per pound and the price of feed is about one cent per pound, the cost of fuel and feed rarely exceeds one dollar per bird.

It has been found that the turkey produces a pound of meat more economically than cattle, sheep or swine and sells for a higher price. In some seasons the price of turkey is practically double the price of the other common meats. The growing pig is the nearest contender for the honors and requires from 500 to 600 pounds of grain for each hundred pounds of pork produced.

FARM CLUB WORK PROGRESSES

Reports of progress in connection with the work of the Boys and Girls Farm Club movement continue to arrive from all the provinces, particularly from the Boys' Club at Sackville, New Brunswick, Quebec, which has not been very progressive in live stock production. Prior to 1930 there were no pure-bred hogs in the locality but in 1931 five French-Canadian hogs were placed with associations organized under the Dominion Department of Agriculture bull loaning policy. The progeny of these bulls have been used in starting cull work and now the boys have taken the initiative in organizing a campaign to eradicate vermin fly. The boys have also interested their fathers in improved cultural methods and at least one acre of roots is being grown on every farm.

ISSUE TIMELY WARNING AGAINST ADULTERATED MAPLE SUGAR AND SYRUP

"The 1935 crop of maple syrup and maple sugar will soon be on the market, for the sap is running in the maple trees in eastern Canada, and the sure and certain sign that spring is just around the corner," says H. L. Wheeler, Fruit Commissioner, Dominion Department of Agriculture. "It would be well for everyone who desires only the pure products to make it a point to see that the container is stamped 'Pure Maple Syrup' or 'Pure Maple Sugar' for many attempts are being made to sell adulterated maple products."

"The Maple Sugar Industry Act and Regulations," explained Mr. Wheeler, "prohibit any person shall manufacture for sale, sell or offer, expose or hold for sale any maple syrup or maple sugar which is adulterated with sugar or syrup resembling or being an imitation of maple syrup or maple sugar which is not pure maple or pure maple sugar, unless the nature and origin of such sugar and syrup shall be clearly indicated."

Inspectors of the Department throughout Canada are making a sharp lookout for those violating the Act, the penalty for which is a heavy fine or imprisonment.

SNOW-MOULD TURF INJURY (Experimental Farms Note)

Many different theories as to the cause of winter injury of turf have been advanced, such as use of unsuitable varieties of grass; unfavorable soil conditions—for instance, lack of proper drainage or of soil nutrients; suffocation due to formation of an ice crust on the turf; rupturing of the individual plant cells by the formation of ice crystals within; misuse of various chemicals and fertilizers, especially late in the season; and parasitic attack by fungi or moulds. Thus in each case one or several factors may operate to cause winter injury. Hence, control must depend on a knowledge of the cause.

During the last four years the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Edmonton, Alberta, has found that the most important cause of winter turf injury is a fungus parasite, called snow-mould. The first symptoms appear as soon as the snow melts in the spring and the grass is seen growing into and through the snow or ice cover. The turf, in these areas of turf of various sizes and shapes appear. The mould attacks the plants, killing the stems, roots and crowns of the grass.

Control of snow-mould has been attempted in different ways with varying degrees of success. Adequate surface drainage may be the answer, but seldom controls it. Obviously the use of resistant varieties of grass would be the ideal control, but such varieties are not available. Early brushing of the turf and removal of snow is sometimes helpful, but it is not sufficient. Therefore, the only alternative is the careful use of chemical fungicides for killing the parasite.

The most promising method found by the Edmonton laboratory is a preventive treatment which can be applied the previous fall, and which will serve to protect the turf throughout the late fall, winter, and early spring. This treatment is to mix three ounces of calomel with one ounce of corrosive sublimate every 1,000 square feet of turf surface in an eight-quart bucket about three-quarters full of dry sharp sand. The sand can be thoroughly mixed with a larger quantity of finely screened and r compost to facilitate even distribution over the turf. Since mercury is corrosive to metals and very poisonous, necessary precautions should be exercised.

SELECTION OF EGGS FOR HATCHING (Experimental Farms Note)

In the selection of eggs for hatching only those weighing at least twenty-four ounces to the dozen should be chosen. They should be fresh, of normal shape and of good shell texture.

It is generally recognized that hens are more satisfactory pullets than broilers for egg production flocks, the chief reason being that mortality in rearing and throughout the pullet year is higher in the progeny of pullets than in that of hens.

Only healthy parent stock which has been tested for pullorum disease should be mated. At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, the hens used as breeders are all yearlings or older. These birds have shown ability in egg production and are also, and in maintenance of body weight during their pullet years. Males to be used should show ample vigor, be of good type and size and of good breeding. When a male bird is used for a second or subsequent breeding season it is because his progeny has been proven by the performance of his daughters.

The feeding of breeders is essentially important. A good laying mash containing two parts of cod liver oil to each one hundred pounds of the mash mixture should be before the birds at all times. If the birds do not have access to pasture the addition of five to seven per cent of alfalfa leaf meal to the mash would give improved results. Carrots, buttermilk and skim milk are known to be beneficial supplements.

Store eggs for hatching in a room free from draughts and at a temperature not over 60 degrees F. Egg cases and make convenient containers. These should be placed on their sides and given half a turn twice daily.

LAMB A SPRINGTIME MEAT

When spring is in the air, housewives and others responsible for the purchase and cooking of meats are faced to face with the desire for a change in the meat diet. Too much meat of the same kind is apt to become distasteful at this time of the year. Fortunately no other country than Canada offers a greater variety of choice meats. Lamb in springtime solves the problem of variety in the selection of meats.
